

Disneyworld

By Amanda Silberstein

Disneyworld brings family together.

And gives you childhood photos that will last a lifetime.

At Disneyworld the fun
and jokes never stop.

At Disneyworld you never stop smiling.

And the magic will never ever stop.

At the safari in Animal Kingdom. You don't get to see a rhinoceros every day do you?

Lastly, Disneyworld reunites you with the people you haven't seen for years.

“AHH” me and my dad screamed as we went down Expedition Everest a rollercoaster at Animal Kingdom, that rollercoaster has about a 85-90 foot drop, crazy right. This was a great experience that I got to share with my dad when my family visited Disneyworld for my brothers 5th birthday. Did you know that every year more than 16 million people visit Disneyworld?

Disneyworld makes a magical impact on many people’s lives. As I said before my brother Aidan went to Disneyworld for his birthday and the Disney staff/ cast members worked so hard to make sure he had a magical birthday. For example, we were at a restaurant and they came over to our table and led everyone in the room in a ‘happy birthday’ just for him. Additionally, my grandma Nancy went to Disneyworld for her first time when she was 53. That proves you are never too old for the magic. She still saw everything and experienced it just like someone who went to Disneyworld for his or her first time at 3. Also, my best friend Polly went to Disneyworld when she was 5 and loved it because she was the right age to see all of the princesses. Disney is magical at any age!

Also, there is always something new at Disneyworld. According to www.disneyworld.com The Seven Dwarfs mine train roller coaster is a new ride as of May 28, 2014. In 2015 they will be adding a Disney's Frozen ride to the Norway exhibit in Epcot. New changes will be coming to the Disney's electrical light parade such as new characters, new floats, etc. Anna and Elsa from Disney's Frozen movie will be appearing together at Magic Kingdom at the new princess fairytale hall in Fantasyland. The market place also known as the "shops within shops" will appear at Downtown Disney featuring all of Disney's new hot retail concepts.

In conclusion, I think Disney World is a magical place, where no one is ever too old to experience the magic for the first time.
