

Twins vs. Siblings

By: Anna Lee

Physically common

Emma
Cook
Room 214 9:15 AM - 9:11:00 AM
Room 215 10:30 AM - 9:11:00 AM

Hope
Cook
Room 214 9:15 AM
Room 215 10:30 AM

Identical

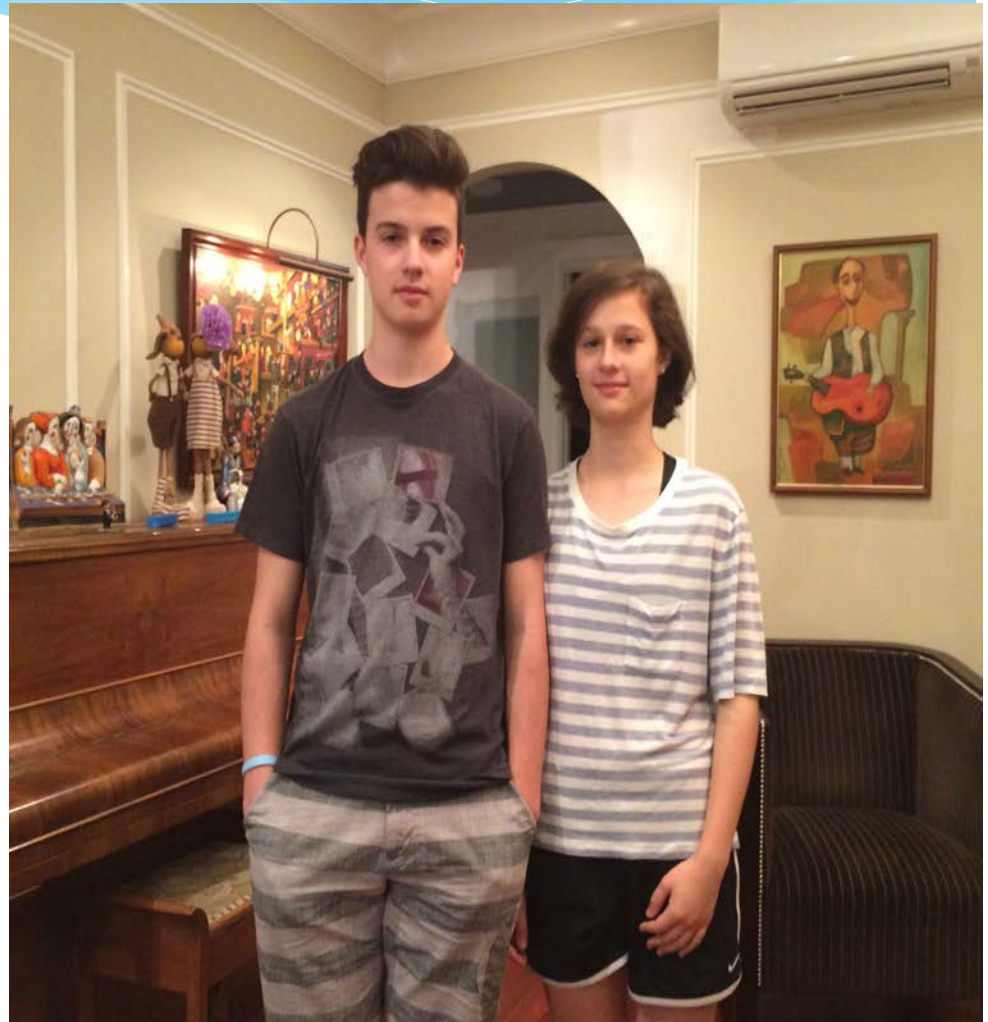

Common

Special

Different

Laughter

Do you think twins are exciting? Well it's known that twins have one of the strongest relationships! I am a twin with my brother; Joshua and I think twins are special and unique. I think twins have stronger bonds than siblings.

First of all, twins have stronger bonds than siblings because they have more in common mentally. Global Post states, Fraternal and identical twins are famous for sharing close relationships. "It's not a normal relationship." In an interview with Justin Girshon, a twin with Sammy Girshon he said, "I think if I weren't a twin it would be different because I would be a more shy person and my sister, Sammy has helped me become the person who I am today." My brother and I have been together forever and like playing together. One time we were in separate places in the house and my brother and I were singing the same exact song at the same exact time. It was fun to know that somebody else was singing with me, and at the same exact time, it was exciting. Twins really do have a special relationship mentally.

Second of all, twins have stronger bonds because they are physically common. I know these twins at church, their names are Lois and Anne (slide #3) and they look exactly alike. I play a game with them to try to guess their name. If I get it right, I am really happy if I'm wrong, I'm just wrong. They must share a lot with each other because being they are always being called by the wrong name. Also, in a National Geographic article about identical twins they said, "They have the same piercing eyes. The same hair color." Twins truly share each others physical features.

Third of all, a stronger bond equals a stronger relationship. From Twin Pregnancy And Beyond the order of the twin bond is, identical girls, (strongest), fraternal girls, identical boys, fraternal boys, fraternal boy/girl. (Weakest). I feel that I have a stronger bond with my twin brother than my little sister.

In conclusion, twins have a stronger relationship than siblings. Twins have more in common mentally and physically, than siblings and a stronger bond equals a stronger relationship. So try to remember be positive if you are a twin, because you are one of the most important relationships on the earth!

Happiness

Unique

Friendship

