

Big Bad Bags

by: Maggie Mitchell

Hello! Today we are going to talk about big bad bag battles. There are three. Pet dino, the cover up and the mini crowd. You probably never paid attention to this annoyance, but after I tell you about it you won't be able to ignore it.

It's a beautiful day in Manhattan. You are walking down the street and all the delightful sounds of the city. . . birds, cars, the trees rustling, and. . . The annoying jingle of one thousand keys? Yep. You are experiencing the big bad bag battle number one. Now why do people buy such big bags? Well nobody knows the answer to that question but the real question you should ask is when they do get such big bags why do they always fill them up to the brim. The answer to that is most people who moved to the city probably used to have a car but even then you don't fill up your trunk whenever you go places. Another reason is that most of them probably have pet dinosaurs and think it's the new style to carry them around in their purse. And sometimes you might just fall into key wonderland if you're not careful so don't look in their bag.

Times square at night is beautiful. And you decide to go there. When you get there it is so easy to get around (NOT). Thousands of people with the same idea as you. And suddenly just as you conquer the big crowd a new one erupts. But this time it's a one women marching band. A woman with a big bad bag begins big bad bags battle number two. The crowd goes wild. The women starts to create her own crowd by walking around and shouting excuse me! At the top of her lungs creating the perfect crowd. She has noise, a big object, (I am pretty sure I heard it roar) and mad people, including you. Now we are both victims of the " mini crowd". And let me tell you we are not alone.

Ahh. A beautiful day hailing a cab. What could possibly go wrong, Beep! A cab pulls over you go to jump in as a lady on the other side climbs in the cab. She apologizes and says you can ride with her. You thank her and climb in. Now that the stories clear I am going to introduce you to the big bad bag battle number three. The cover up. So now you're in the cab waiting for the lady. Lets speed up about 10 minutes. Now the lady is in and you're half way to your destination you are crammed in the corner of the cab and all because of the lady's purse. How comfy. And cabs aren't the only problem. Subways are a bit more popular. So lets say your in a subway and a two seats open up and so you go to sit down and. Plop! A women sits down in the seat next to the seat you were going to sit in. So you continue to go sit down and plop the woman's big bag falls into your seat and you are stuck standing.

Now we come to the end of our big bad bag battles and now I hope you learned something. Like don't buy a big bag and put your pet dinosaur in it. No more questions about it. Big bad bags are the worst!
