

How dogs help humans

By Cayton Xuereb

Rescue dogs

Hunting dogs

Service dogs

Searching dogs

Guard dogs

-
- ◆ Dogs can help people in many different ways. There are many different types of dogs in the world. Some types of dogs that help humans are service dogs, police dogs, guard dogs, hunting dogs, and neighborhood dogs. All of these types of dogs are important and help people.
- ◆ Police dogs and guard dogs are animals that protect their owner and other people. They are capable of sniffing to find criminals and dangerous stuff. They also bark and bite to scare away bad people and find their hide out. Hunting dogs are also good at finding things to. They help people find food and other stuff. Service dogs help people who are injured or blind. They show people where to go when they can't find it themselves. Last, the number one type of dogs are neighborhood dogs because they get to live in your house and live their life with people. These dogs also become a part of a person's family.
- ◆ In conclusion, it does not matter what type of doge it is, all dogs can be helpful to humans in many different ways. They treat people with care and always stay by their side. When dogs help people its really interesting because its cool how the smallest dog could guide or help someone when they are really slow.