

Time Square!

By Joseph Andrew Miney

Author's Note

Time Square is beautiful place. Time Square has great scenery, views, and is different from other tourist attractions. For example, were else would you see a wax figure of a guy that can stretch his lip over his nose (as seen on page 5)! Time Square is one of the most popular commercial industries in the world, with a whopping third of a million people visiting there a year.

Time Square was named after the “New York Times” started making business in the area. Soon, more buildings, restaurants, and advertisements came along only to make that Time Square, the Time Square we all know and love today.

At my trip to Time Square we saw...

Lots and lots of candy

This is a picture of the Hershey's store. This is the home of many Hershey's kisses, chocolate bars, and every candy under the sun. This store is a dentist's worst nightmare!

The year of 2016

This is a picture of the New Years Ball. Every new years eve, there is a tradition where we stay up until midnight to watch the ball drop. The ball drops when it turns to 2016.

A nice man named Ralph

This is a picture of a wax figure. This person does exist, but this isn't the real guy. It doesn't matter if he is real or not, he looks real.

My new ride

This is another picture outside of the wax museum. But this time it's not with a person. This is the world smallest car!

Billboard City

In time square there are many advertisements. Everywhere in Time Square are advertisements. Advertisements make Time Square, Time Square.

Feeding the Beast!

Like I said, LOTS OF ADVERTISEMENTS! This is a picture of me next to a new TV show advertisement called “Feed the Beast.”
