Weddings!

A child's perspective of weddings!

by Lucas Joy

This is a photo of Mountain Meadows lodge in Killington, Vermont. This photo shows that the bride and groom can have their wedding anywhere they want to have it. They can even have it in another country!

This is a sign that reads: Yay!
Becca & David wedding time! it is planted by where the wedding is going to be to let guests know where to go.

This cone shaped holder is for when the wedding ceremony is over. It is filled with flower petals for throwing on the bride and groom when they walk down the aisle at the end of the ceremony.

This photo shows a flower pinned to the chest of the best man. These flowers are just saying to the bride and groom “good luck”! They are also a sign of respect to the bride and groom.

These are relatives of either the bride or groom. They walk down the aisle to their front row seats because they are family.

The bride and groom take vows after the priest gives a speech. The vows are saying that they will always be at each other's side and will lead a happy life.

Then the bride and groom kiss as the priest says “I now pronounce you man and wife” --then everyone claps!!

After the ceremony is over, it is time to take champagne or seltzer in your hand while a photo gets taken. The champagne is arranged in a heart shape.

This is a photo of the bride, groom and bridesmaids. Normally, a few photos of the wedding party are taken after the champagne and seltzer photo.

This moment is during the wedding dinner. It is a shot of the best man giving a speech to the crowd about the groom.

This is the wedding cake for after the dinner. It is the dessert. Little did I know there was jelly filling inside! That was not too great.

Weddings can be fun sometimes, but as always they can be boring, too. Weddings are a sign of people's love for each other. It is an agreement showing that they love each other and they will always be with the other.

During weddings, the bride and groom are the main people. It is their wedding after all! When the bride and the groom are pronounced man and wife, it is the official start of their marriage. During the wedding dinner, people dance and have a good time. Also during the wedding dinner, people give speeches about the bride or groom. Then, everyone eats cake.

YAY! A HAPPY ENDING!
